"Love, Light and Laughter"

Here's a New Year's resolution: Stay in better touch.

With the internet having become such an accessible communication tool, the personal, hand-written note is nearly a thing of the past. Don't let it be. Because we all know that nice feeling of finding a personal note waiting for us at the mailbox, why not resolve to send friends and family more personal notes via snail mail this year? Make your notecard-writing a unique experience with my one-of-a-kind hand-painted notecards. To see my full line of available greetings and designs, visit the HeartART section of my website at www.SuzetteBoulais.com.

Studying the style of abstract artist Mark Rothko

When people ask me to describe my painting style, I tell them I pattern my work after artist Mark Rothko (1903-1970) whose color, structure, and space in his paintings combined to create a unique presence. While my paintings are relatively small, 36" x 40", Rothko's were large and unframed, up to 10 feet tall. As his style evolved, Rothko reduced the number of floating rectangles in his paintings to two, three, or four and aligned them vertically against a colored background, arriving at his signature style which you can see here on the purple, green and brown painting to the far right.

Let's talk logos

Roosevelt School logo captures mission

Teachers help students reach for the highest star

Roosevelt Magnet School for The Fine Arts is committed to helping their young students excel in many areas of the arts. That's why, when approached by school principal Taunya Jenkins to design some new letterhead for the school, I was delighted to create this stylized logo in Roosevelt's school colors of navy and orange, depicting an educator helping a student reach for the highest star.

If you'd like me to create a new your logo for your business or update your letterhead, please email me at Suzette@SuzetteBoulais.com.

Fred Dirkse next to "Rise III"

Here is one of my paintings, "Rise III" in the home of Fred and Becca Dirkse. Fred, who owns The Big Easy Coffee Shop in Le Vieux Carre Complex in downtown Peoria, liked my original "Rise" on display at his coffee shop so much that he requested I do a similar painting for his home. I did and here it is.
