Cover of Tuscany photography book inspires painting

When my friend Shelley Chouinard asked me to do an abstract painting for her newly renovated bathroom, we chose colors based on a coffee table book Shelley has on Tuscany that perfectly complemented the tile and wall colors in her bathroom.

If you would like me to do a painting for a special room in your home, contact me at

The sun is such a symbol of hope. That's why I use it as the focal point in many of my paintings. Here are some photos of sunsets I took on a recent trip to Florida that are likely to inspire future work.

Picture This Gallery features art and tees

Picture This Gallery and Framing in Peoria Heights, Illinois held an opening reception for my friend Don Kettleborough on May 1. Don's exhibit, Incredible Edibles, presents his newest work with vibrant colored oil paintings of fruits and vegetables with clever and comical twists. The pieces can make a great addition to any kitchen or dining area. Stop on by today.

While you're there, take a look at my colorful Follow Your Art tee shirts on display. You may have to purchase one for the artist in your life!
