How would you like to develop your own notecard line?

Over the past few months, more requests have come my way to design sets of notecards with specific themes. Last month a dear friend requested that I design some notecards for her using a double rainbow. As she'd explained in her design request, "My family has a very meaningful incident with rainbows. The morning after my mother passed we saw a gorgeous double rainbow filling the western sky, and also one appeared later when our family was having a reunion in New York state with my mother's side of the family. We had a rainy day and suddenly, as we were getting ready to all meet for dinner, a gorgeous rainbow appeared. It was like my mother was saying at both times, 'I am with you always.'"

My brother Marc has also asked that I design notecards for him that include poetry he's written on the inside and a cover design that coincides with his poetry on the outside. Here are two notecards, one to complement his poem, "Summer's Daydream" and the other of Chartres Cathedral for his poem, "Ode to Late Night Heroes." Let me know if I can design some notecards for you.

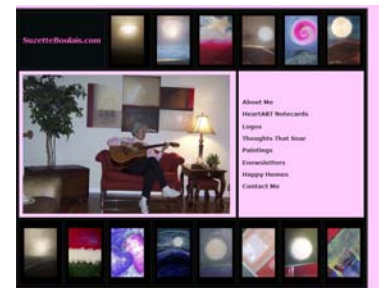

Summer Watermelon

If you go to the HeartART section of my website at www.SuzetteBoulais.com, you'll see these individually hand-painted "Watermelon" notecards among a variety of other original notecard designs. With summer right around the corner, why not order a dozen notecards of this summery image painted in hot pink, lime green and fluorescent yellow? Brighten someone's day by sending a personal notecard with these bright, happy colors!

Have you visited my website yet at www.SuzetteBoulais.com? To the right is what the home page looks like. My website includes images of original paintings as well as samples of my unique hand-painted notecards.

Take a look and navigate around. You might find something you can't live without, either for yourself or for a gift to someone special in your life.
