Suzette's art makes any background artsy

Step off the sidewalk and into the Gallery on Sheridan in Peoria, Illinois, to find studios, artwork and row after row of colorful collectibles.

On any given First Friday, you may also see some of my artwork like in this photo to the right where my artwork serves as a backdrop to the Rosser Brothers Band who recently performed at a CIAO First Friday Gallery Walk. Over the holidays, plan to make a stop at the Gallery on Sheridan or at any of a dozen other galleries to do your Christmas shopping. Go to CIAOPeoria.com to find out all gallery walk locations.

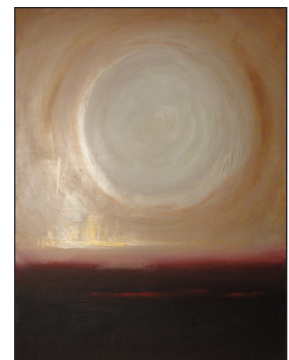

Art at new PRM and ROOM

When the new Peoria Riverfront Museum opened last month, it was an honor to be included among the local area artists whose work was chosen to be on display until next Spring. To the right is my piece that was selected for inclusion in the exhibit.

And below right is another piece that is hanging in ROOM, a new business that provides an off-site meeting experience unique to the region—focused on creative environments and high-end service and technology.

As many of us artists can attest, we're so much happier when our work is shown in these kinds of public spaces within our respective communities rather than hanging in privacy on the walls of our individual art rooms.

Make a holiday splash!

The holiday season is here and so is your chance to add some splash to the greeting cards you send. Why not send some of my individually, hand-painted "Holiday Splash" notecards?

These elegant red, green and gold notecards are only $2.00 a piece. To place your order, contact me today at Suzette@SuzetteBoulais.com.

Feel free to forward this enews to friends and colleagues!
